Book Club Questions

- Why does Anna always put herself second and try to help others in despair?
- Do our schools and teachers know how to reach out to children going through crises?
- How might things have been different if Anna's siblings' teachers had reached out to help after the death of Liz?
- Do you think a family as disconnected as Anna's could do such a drastic turnaround and open up to each other, as when her parents and siblings met on the fifth floor?
